

Mark Hancock, MD

I would like to thank my patients who, when faced with a terrifying diagnosis, decided to place their trust in a higher purpose and have faith in enkindling the innate forces of healing. You have chosen me to care for you, but you have been my most personal and profound teachers during your healing journeys. I would like to thank my wife Enid, who brings her heart into all the clinical activities.

Peter Hinderberger, MD

I would not have chosen this comprehensive medical path were it not for a group of friends and fellow medical students (class of 1977), disillusioned by the analytical approach of medicine, who persuaded me to attend a presentation by Rita Leroi, MD. Dr. Leroi was head of oncology at the Lucas Klinik (now Klinik Arlesheim) in 1976. She has passed away, but was a wonderful human being, clinician, and teacher.
